The 6 To Success bus route service that launched on Nov. 12 has been transporting individuals from Marlin and Riesel to the Waco Transit Center with comfort and ease, where connecting buses can be reached in a matter of moments.

This route is the first public mode of transportation from the Marlin area into Waco, which can allow individuals to reach places of employment and education.

In fact, in an effort to spread the word and encourage riders even more, the free bus fare will be continued until Jan. 12.

Anyone can use the service to go anywhere Waco Transit goes. Thanks to the partnership between the Heart of Texas Workforce Development Board and Waco Transit, the bus fare has been free since its original unveiling just a few shorts weeks ago.

New riders continue to increase as awareness of the route grows. Waco Transit, the Heart of Texas Workforce Development Board, and 6 To Success' many sponsors have lent their support in extending this fare-free service.

The day the fares go into effect, Jan. 14, was chosen to coincide with the first day of classes at McLennan Community College, which is also one week into the spring semester for Texas State Technical College's Waco Campus.

Waco Transit and the Heart of Texas Workforce Development Board are encouraging current students to utilize the service as a lower-cost transportation method.

At the same time, prospective students who may not have had transportation prior are being motivated to enroll in classes.

This is an attempt to show students that they have options for getting to campus and encourage them to experience the benefits of public transportation for themselves.

However, the 6 To Success service is not going to be free of charge only for students, but for the public at large.

People riding the 6 To Success route for employment or recreation can also utilize the service at no charge.
